Talking about health, reproduction, relationships and love to children and adolescents is an essential stage for their development and understanding of life. Jeune S3 has produced a broad range of tools for different target groups (parents, adolescents, facilitators, teachers, religious leaders, etc) with two main objectives: to raise awareness on Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights (SRHR) and promote a positive dialogue about it.

About us
Jeune S3 is an alliance of seven partners led by Cordaid. This Alliance is a strategic partnership with the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The alliance members are Cordaid, PSI Europe and Swiss TPH supported by four technical support agencies: I+ solutions, Free Press Unlimited, IPPF ARO, and Triggerise. The Jeune S3 program (2016-2020) aimed to ensure that young people (including the most marginalized and vulnerable populations – especially girls between the ages of 10 and 14) are able, motivated and have the opportunity to make informed choices about their SRHR and that their sexual and reproductive rights are respected. ## 2. SELECTION OF MATERIALS

TOOL #1

Like Sarah, Miriam and Joe

The children and young adolescents’ story “Like Sarah, Miriam and Joe” can help this age group to start thinking about important choices in life related to sexuality, relationships, gender and peer support. It helps them to talk more easily and openly about difficult personal topics with friends, teachers, (grand)parents, etc. The book is supported by a separate didactic folder for teachers and youth group leaders.

TARGET GROUP

Girls and boys aged around 10-14 years.

- French
- Amharic
- Swahili
- Luganda
- Sidamigna

TOOL #2

Like Pamela

The story for adolescents “Like Pamela” is an attractive story for girls, 12 – 19 years old to discover how to find their way in life as a single mother. They will discover their own ‘Girl Power’ and how to find support in their community. The book is supported by an accompanying guidebook with group activity suggestions and fact sheets for use by facilitators of groups of teenage mothers or adolescents and teachers.

TARGET GROUP

It can be used for groups of adolescent girls and especially useful for new teenage mothers, but also for girls becoming caretakers of young infants in the home for the first time, regardless of the family relationship.

<td>Dad, Mum, where do babies come from?</td>
<td>This booklet for parents aims to encourage them to talk to their children about love, relationships and sexuality as they may sometimes wonder what can or cannot be said to a child or adolescent. It includes 25 questions frequently asked by parents (for example “What kind of language should I use?” Or “What to do when my child sees pornographic scenes on television or the Internet?”) and adequate answers for each age group. The Picture Box is a complementary tool, in support of the booklet of the same name “Dad, Mum where do babies come from?” to help qualified facilitators to lead parent awareness training sessions in small groups. It helps facilitators to guide parents through the different chapters in a structured way. It uses attractive images to catch the interest of parents and generate discussion. Each chapter consists of three distinct sections: one introduction, questions to debate and finally the main messages to convey.</td>

<td>Card game: True or false</td>
<td>This fun 80-card game aims to tackle taboos and misinformation by providing objective information to help young people make decisions during their adolescence. The attractive cards are divided into eight broad categories of questions (Knowing your body; Life cycle; Love and sexuality; Contraception; STIs and HIV/AIDS; Pregnancy; Abortion; Rights), which must be answered with “True” or “False.” An explanation is given on the back of each card which helps to open up discussion among the young players.</td>

| This facilitation handbook (+ annex manual) for religious leaders on the Sexual and Reproductive Health of young people is a flexible training curriculum that has been designed to be used on an interfaith and intercultural basis. It aims to educate and empower religious leaders with the necessary information and skills to better understand and support young people in making critical decisions about their sexual and reproductive health. Note that this facilitation guide does not intend to change the fundamental religious positions of religious leaders - instead it informs them about the SRH of young people. The intention is for religious leaders to reflect on and understand how they can practice their leadership and be good role models for vulnerable young people. | Religious leaders with official responsibilities in their communities. | □ Facilitation handbook and annex manual | □ French
